

Shoulders All Baking Cares

When CALUMET comes in, all baking troubles take quick leave. You go right ahead and mix up baking materials, for biscuits—cakes—anything without fear of uncertainty. Calumet makes you forget failure.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

is the most popular because it does give most perfect results. It has the big good reason because it is the most delicate. The fact that it is the best is not a secret. It is the best. A trial will convince you that there is none "just as good." Buy a can—if you are not satisfied take it back and get your money back.

Calumet contains only such ingredients as have been approved officially by the U. S. Food Authorities.

O. U. KID.

The Easter weather has been quite severe and disagreeable. Today the temperature is slightly higher and the cold spell probably is about over.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

The Research and Welfare Station for normal children which the state of Iowa has recently established deserves to become the pattern for other states. Just what constitutes a normal child is a small question. Most of the children who are supposed to be normal suffer from some minor defect, which will grow on them, if it does not receive prompt and efficient attention. That means the services of a specialist. A practitioner cannot be expected to know all ailments of the organism equally well any more than a business man knows every trade. As for patent medicines, the long list of cures from blisters to pneumonia boasted on their labels, is black eye enough.

You may blame your child for inattention when her hearing is defective or wonder what gives her face that flat expression when she has adenoids. It is useless to caution her over and over, "Keep your mouth shut." If enlarged tonsils and turbinates are making even mouth breathing difficult. It is no disgrace to find and treat some such defect in your child. On the contrary, it is a matter of pride to see the same child later, sturdy and bright, and untroubled by every child's disease that comes along.

All of us are said to cry from joy, sorrow, anger, or fear, because all of us do try it once in awhile. A little baby experiences the same emotions, when he cries, in a lesser degree. It's very much less in the case of joy as he usually crows instead. His sorrows usually concern a safety pin, and his anger a delayed dinner. But his fears, the intangible, are very real to him. Then he needs attention. However, the idea that the minute a baby begins to cry, he must be given the moon, if necessary, to stop him, is all wrong. It's remarkable what a short period is required to completely spoil him with such treatment. If you make sure to see that he is comfortable, you will find that nine times out of ten he is crying because he is good and mad, and the tenth because he doesn't know what he wants. Instead of being perfectly miserable, the little thing is trying to feel better as fast as nature will let him. Tears are like a floodgate to any emotion and relieve the congestion whether the victim is large or small, old or young.

That which is a little thing to you may be so to others. It all depends on the view point. A girl asked her colored maid what she had done with the bottom of the collapsible waste basket. The maid confessed to having lost it. She said, "you know, I forgot about them little things." The waste basket was useless without the bottom. Particularly, as long as she didn't have to use it. This is the policy of a lot of people, what concerns them is of the first importance, nothing else matters. And this very attitude is the whole matter with them in the eyes of other people.

The success of the whole depends up on the perfection of its parts. Thus it may not seem to matter to an individual himself whether he is down and out or not. It may not matter to him, but this fact doesn't matter to his friends, his community, his country. Whether his influence is great or small his latencies will leave some social or financial scar on those surrounding him. No man lives to himself alone. He cannot measure his own influence, for he does not know how wide it may be. This that should be a crumb of comfort to the man who is down and out—he may be needed by someone and needed desperately. Even when a man cannot keep going for his own sake, he should for the sake of others.

The early bird does and doesn't get the worm. Being one of the first on the premises, he is sure of something, but it may not be what he wants. What the proverb means is that he has a chance to get what he wants. This is just what getting up early does for any individual. That is, getting up alone doesn't insure success, unless he actually accomplishes something after getting up. But early rising does put him in the spirit of working, if he gives it a fair trial.

The modern craze for excitement has become a mania enjoyed by the entire population of America. A plain death notice no longer attracts any attention, unless it depicts a spectacular exit. Those types as freaks formerly were not considered nice, but now they have become positively sensational. Food is no longer considered good to eat unless it so tricks you by its dressed-up appearance that you are taken unaware. Nor is Art interesting enough to be capitalized except when it stands for atrocity. A quiet evening at home would be regarded as a sinking spell and might hasten the departure from this life prematurely. Papers are not printed to be read any more because there is no news in them. They are filled with intriguing bombs to be dissected with intriguing bombs to be dissected.

gosted emotionally. Political news is becoming so intricate that it suggests education in the higher forms and so must be avoided. It is far better to read about the latest movie plot, as it will be too improbable as to suggest anything so unpleasant as the L. W. W.'s or the milk bill. However, the disaster which will overtake our nation—mad nation will not be improbable, if it doesn't stop living on the froth of life, while the nourishment sours underneath.

THE CRACK O' DOOM

FOR NASTY CALOMEL

Folks Abandoning Old Drug for "Dedson's Liver Tonic," Here in South.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you lose a day.

Calomel is mercury! When it comes into contact with your bile, it crashes into it, breaking it up. Then is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish, if liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, get a spoonful of harmless Dedson's Liver Tonic tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dedson's Liver Tonic for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't strengthen you right up and make you feel like a new man, go back to the store and get your money. Dedson's Liver Tonic is destroying the sale of calomel because it can not sell or make you sick.
